HIGGINS SEES BRIGHTER FUTURE

Major Henry L. Higgins, back from Europe, looking as well as it is, is now a member of the Boston Cooperative Milk Producers' Association.

Charles, the indictment for the federal grand jury of Secretary William H. Butler of the Boston Cooperative Milk Producers' Association, has resulted in a conviction of the price of milk.

Among the matters to be considered are the new and urgent problems caused by the indictment of a representative of the Milk Producers' Company, the refusal of the board to meet the officers of any organization, and especially how we may meet the demand for a "living price for our product."

According to the producers, the indictment of Secretary Butler, and several contractors has resulted in causing the contractors to fear to discuss business matters with officers of any organization.

The deal with the producers individually and because of this have been successful in depressing the price of milk.

One of the officers of the producers' organization said that the average producer is not receiving at all the present price for his milk, and that he is losing money on his milk during last July and for the ten preceding months. His average loss was more than four cents per quart.

Headlines may be passed at the moment regarding the court's interpretation of the Sherman act, so far as it will affect the milk business.

One of the more drastic interpretations should be presented.

MILK PRODUCERS CALL MEETING

Charles, the indictment for the federal grand jury of Secretary William H. Butler of the Boston Cooperative Milk Producers' Association, has resulted in a conviction of the price of milk.

Among the matters to be considered are the new and urgent problems caused by the indictment of a representative of the Milk Producers' Company, the refusal of the board to meet the officers of any organization, and especially how we may meet the demand for a "living price for our product."

FAT MEN START UP BUNKER HILL

Four old Bunker Hill monument—it's having its troubles today. For years it has stood the test of an army of tourists from all parts of the world, climbing up and down its hundreds of winding stairs just today—surely on it the fat men are going to make an assault on its historic bulwarks.

On a fat man rate his fat limbs, and plant his fat feet on 400 winding stairs in succession? The answer comes today. Armed with quart jars of lubricating and joint-bolting oil, and the courage of warriors the fat men will try to climb the monument. Try is good, for if any one of them were to reach the top what will be the fate of the monument? If two ever get up how will they ever be taken down? And in three—well, there are limits to even the imagination.

The New England Fat Men's Club starts its outing here today, and beside its monument-climbing diversion, it will visit back (outside of the Navy Yard). Time the old deep sea monsters will be rolled and tossed as in an East Indian typhoon when the fat men surge from side to side and fore and aft along the decks. Charleston need not be surprised at a few sharks and emergency calls today.

In the evening an old-fashioned home-made performance has been provided for the members at the Bunker Hill. Tomorrow the fat men will go to Nahant in quest of sport and fish, and will return in the evening in time to enjoy a banquet.

On Sunday they will attend service at Tremont Temple, and will then seek the cool breezes and unobscured views of the sounds at Revere Beach.

Would you not think it beyond belief that a man paid back $2,153 on an original loan of $15? It's a fact. Can you believe that a person has paid $4,000 on an original loan of $400 and still owes $850? Well, it's a fact.

The Sunday AMERICAN has joined the good citizenship of Boston in a determination to curb these ruthless loan sharks. In next Sunday's AMERICAN an expose of the loan shark business will be printed that will shock all of New England.

The Bishop Cheverus, fourth degree assembly of the Knights of Columbus, will observe "Embarkation Day," the anniversary of the departure of Columbus on his famous voyage, with an outing for all its members and their friends on Wednesday, July 26. While the committee has just started the affair, it has assumed proportions to warrant the statement that it will be one of the biggest outdoor events ever held by the council in this city.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The recent run of the little submarine fleet from Newport to Gloucester broke all records of length of submergence and distance traveled beneath the surface. All the way from Newport to Provincetown their voyage was made without detection by passing vessels, although the submarines must have passed a large number of craft. The command was given to "go down" when the crews of the newspaper reporters did not discover the fleet. One boat made a considerable run at the great depth of 60 feet, and a large part of the voyage was an interesting demonstration of the reliable nature of the submarine in actual warfare.

MELLEN BLOCKS GRAND TRUNK

A plot of land bought up by the New Haven road about a year ago, and the town of Blackstone had put a temporary standing block to the path of the Grand Trunk line in its efforts to construct a line through Massachusetts to Providence, according to statements made today at a conference between Chairman Hall of the National Commission and officials of the Grand Trunk system.

The charge was made that the purchase of the land after the Grand Trunk had begun to stake out the proposed route was a "trick" to obstruct the development of the Grand Trunk road through Blackstone, Southbridge and Blackstone into Providence.

Talk between Chairman Hall and the Grand Trunk men and representatives of the Railroad Commission will follow the question of further delay in the Grand Trunk line. The Grand Trunk men are not giving up their claim of right to the land, and they are not giving up their claim of right to the land.

The conference was held at the office of the Railroad Commission, and it was held at the office of the Railroad Commission, and it was held at the office of the Railroad Commission.

The Brooding Child

By ADA PATTERSON

The tragic passing of one of the enter-American novelists recently sounded a warning to the nation of the broadness of the soul in which insanity and the criminal are more likely to grow than genius. He was self-centred and with the personal selfishness, overpowered the will to him. He divided the world into two camps, those his father regarded as his enemies, and those his mother called his friends. Because the latter novelist ignored the man's insolent demands, for attention to this overgrown self, the youth killed the author and himself.

From his home came the excuse that the boy must have been insane, that he had a "brooding" temper. He had been a brooding child.

If parents and teachers concentrated more upon correcting this brooding habit than in discouraging what they call lies, and which are only active imagination, the world would be a different thing, the world might have been spared the seeds of zoöbiologism, of Chölogism, of Thaum and of Giffness.

It is normal to love life and to enjoy the society of one kind. If the instinct for mingling with other children is mis-challenge as did the boy who let him over the fence, and he out and he "licked" or
